

Big Beak, ever aspiring to stardom, tracks the Young Ambassadors (above); a cameraman at work (right).

Behind the 1981 Fest

Guitarist accompanies a Mexican dance (below), reflecting the international flavor of Festival '81.

Young Ambassadors gather around a fire (top) and build a snowman (above); performers set up in front of Auditorium (above, center); singer and friend in "Talk to the Animals" (left).

Scenes at the Feast Show

"Festival '81," a special film featuring singing, dancing, comedy and all-around family

A Hungarian folk dance (left) is featured in Festival '81. Below, from left, Young Ambassadors blend their voices in "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" scene and singers record some of the film's 17 selections in the studio.

entertainment, will be shown at sites around the world this Feast.

The 75-minute show, the theme of which is the spirit of the Millennium, has been in production since the 1980 Feast. It features the Young Ambassadors, the Ambassador College Chorale, the Imperial School Choraliers and some 40 musicians.

Festival '81 was filmed largely on the Pasadena campus of Ambassador College, with other sequences shot at Pasadena's Wrigley Mansion, the world-famous San Diego Zoo and a ranch in Fallbrook, Calif.

Ambassador students perform a clog dance native to America's Appalachian region (above), and a fiddler adds his touch to the show's "Square Dance" segment (right).

Here, in pictures, is a sneak preview of the 1981 Feast show.

